PRICE 4 DOLLARS 50 CENTS.
Rules and Regulations for the Field Exercise and Manoeuvres of the French Infantry, issued August 1st, 1791; and the Manoeuvres added, which have been since adopted by the emperor Napoleon. Also, the Manoeuvres of the Field Artillery, with Infantry. By Col. Irene Amelot de Lacroix, late Chief of Brigade in the French service. In three volumes, the third volume consisting of plates.

The principal part of this work has been translated from French to English, by Lieut. Col. Macdonald, in the service of his Britannic majesty. Col. de Lacroix has not only availed himself of Macdonald's translation, but has retained the principal theories, with which Col. M. has enriched his work, especially his comparison of the French tactics with the Prussian, and the principles of the different nations with the English; because those valuable notes are sufficient for such comparisons, and are in point. Col. De L. has augmented those notes.

The introduction of Col. de Lacroix's works will direct the attention of the young Americans to the study of learned tactics, the result of experience, and enable them to obtain the precision desirable in the warrior; for they must be convinced that a good officer forms a good soldier, and that the experience of ages has demonstrated, that the soldier will perform his duty correctly, when he is well commanded.

At the end of the second volume of this work, Col. De Lacroix has added the manoeuvres of the field artillery with the infantry, according to the French principles. It is not necessary to lavish praises on the advantage of moving this thundering arm with the same facility and celerity as the line. Europe is now convinced and confesses it. He has added Plates, which demonstrate those manoeuvres so essential to the great operations of war, and which will enable officers to execute them.

Col. de Lacroix has judged it also expedient to add to this book some new adopted manoeuvres, which have been put in practice to great advantage in the face of an enemy. To enhance the value of this work is the only motive could induce him to augment its size.

ABSCONDED from my farm at the mouth of Seneca, about the 7th of last month, a man whose name is RALPH, 21 years of age, between a black and yellow color, nearly 6 feet high, very stout made, yellowish eyes looking heavy—he has but little to say. His apparel was oxburg shirts, a negro cotton overjacket and trousers. It is likely he has made away with them and procured other clothing. A free negro man by name Sambo, living on Judge Washington's estate, Mount Vernon, is his father, and it is very probable he is thereabout or in Alexandria, and with little trouble may be found.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

I WILL sell the TRACOPLEND on which I resided the last year, called Dezard's Island, lying on Putuxent river, in Calvert county and nearly opposite to Benedict; containing by estimation seven hundred three and one quarter acres of as fertile land as can be found in the state of Maryland, one third of which is in wood and very heavily timbered, and as well watered for the convenience of stock as any tract of its size in the state.

The arable part of this plantation is level and most of it covered with oyster shells and is divided into three fields each of which will produce two hundred barrels of corn, with a reserve of prime Tobacco land sufficient to grow fifty hogsheads of Tobacco annually, and with very little labor more meadow may be reclaimed than will be found sufficient. No land can be better adapted to the growth of corn, tobacco and wheat, and few plantations hold out stronger inducements to stimulate an industrious man. It lies for a considerable distance on the river and lies nearly in a square.

Fish, oysters and wild fowl, are to be had at all times. Stock of every description, particularly sheep, thrive and improve wonderfully when removed to this land—a convincing proof of the nutritious quality of the grass which it produces in great abundance. The improvements are sufficient to accommodate a small family. A more particular description is not necessary, as a purchaser will naturally view the premises. The above estate is now under a tenement of one thousand dollars per annum. Terms accommodating, and made known by application to Water W. Harwood, merchant, Upper Marlboro' Prince George County, or to the subscriber now in Alexandria.

that valuable and convenient Brick Store House and Wharf at present occupied, being calculated for a store and counting room upon the first floor, and for a family house upon the second floor, with an excellent dry cellar under the whole building, together with a back kitchen adjoining. This small business has been equal to say in Virginia for the last of both Dry Goods and Groceries, and if the present growing trade of grain should be realized equal to its present appearance there is no doubt that the business would be to former times, as the property is located a constant cash market for wheat, and probably pay 70 to 80,000 bushels.

BOSTON, June 20.

LATE FROM ENGLAND.

By an arrival yesterday we received London papers to the 14th May. They are not fruitful of events.

Excepting that the appointment of Mr. Morier as secretary of legation to the U. States, had been gazetted, we find nothing on the subject of our relations with England.

Every thing remained quiet in England: Burdett was in the Tower, and his friends did not increase in Parliament. The great opposition lords, Grey and Grenville, had declared in favor of Parliamentary privileges. The speaker of the Commons had obtained leave to defend against Burdett's action.

A singular attempt had been made by the British government to induce Ferdinand the 7th to escape from his prison in France: But he had refused to accede to it—had given intimation to his prison-keeper of the attempt, and had obtained the arrest of the agent; and had requested to be adopted as Napoleon's son. So say the French papers. Circumstances render the account of the attempt probable.

The English accounts from Cadiz are to the 1st May. They state the French approached against it to be forward; and that they had taken fort Matagorda, on the N. E. side of the harbor. The city was well fortified, and had a strong garrison. An incessant cannonade was kept up by the besiegers and besieged. Their Lisbon accounts are not so late as ours. Massena was to command the invaders of Portugal, with Ney, Junot and Regnier under him.

Napoleon was making tours in company with his lovely empress, who was said to have acquired a commanding influence over him. They were visiting Antwerp. The archduke Charles was becoming a favorite with Bonaparte; who has advanced him to the highest dignity in his Legion of Honor, and it was said would make him king of Spain.

There were no indications of peace. A British fleet had arrived in the Baltic.

From papers by the sch'r Resolution, Bates, from Plymouth, Eng.

PARIS, April 29, 1810.

The minister of police [Fouche] has announced to the emperor, that the commandant of the castle of Valancay has given information of the introduction into that castle of a baron De Kolli, calling himself a minister of England, to prince Ferdinand (the legitimate king of Spain, a prisoner in that castle). Kolli is now a prisoner in Vincennes. The diamonds, &c. of which he was the bearer are deposited at the police office. [Here follow, a letter from Ferdinand, apprizing the French governor of the conduct of Kolli; also, a certificate of the marquis Wellesley, as a credential of Kolli—Also, a letter from the British king to Ferdinand assuring the latter of his friendship and alliance: of the means employed to rescue Spain from her invaders; and exhorting him to escape from his servitude. Then follows a letter from the governor of Valancay, giving an account of the celebration of the 1st April, in honor of the emperor's marriage; at which the Spanish princes testified their joy on the event, and when Ferdinand 7th gave as a toast—"Our august sovereign Napoleon the Great, and Maria-Louisa his august spouse:—and also, a letter from Prince Ferdinand, declaring his wish to become the adopted son of Napoleon.]

On the examination of Kolli, he said he was Charles Leopold, baron of Kolli, aged 32, a native of Ireland, and minister to Ferdinand 7th.—That he came to France with proper credentials and letters to Ferdinand; that he had funds with him to the amount of 300,000 francs; that his project was to effect the escape of Ferdinand from his confinement, by stationing relays of horses and carriages to the coast, were a squadron of one tail of the line, a frigate, a brig and a galley, under commodore Cockburn, were stationed to receive them. That he was accompanied by M. de St. Bonville, that under pretence of having some curious articles [diamonds] to sell, he attempted to obtain an interview with prince Ferdinand, in order to put into his hands the letters he was entrusted with; but that the prince refused either to hear or see him, and he had reason to believe that he was informed of his proposals to the governor of the castle, which occasioned his arrest.

LONDON, May 14.

The Gazette contains General Graham's and Captain's Maclaine's official account of the evacuation of the fort of Matagorda, situated on the main land opposite to Fort Punta, in the inner harbor of Cadiz. It was garrisoned by 140 British soldiers and seamen, under Captain Maclaine. It stood a two months investment, and was a heap of ruins when left. The gallant defence cost us the lives of Major Leleuvre, of the engineers, and 75 privates; we also had a lieutenant, 2 midshipmen, and 53 privates wounded.

The French papers are full of official accounts of actions and skirmishes in Spain; in at least half of which the Spaniards were the assailants; but who, as is always the case in the French accounts, were dispersed and cut to pieces.

Letters from Gibraltar state, that Count Pulley and a French spy, had been sent from that garrison to Cadiz, to be tried. The reports of victory over the French in Catalonia, by General O'Donnel, are corroborated.

Our squadron under Sir James Saumarez, has safely arrived in the Baltic.

The emperor Napoleon is on a visit to Holland. On the 4th May king Louis set out to meet him.

We learn from Malta, that the Sublime Porte had given Mr. Adair the most positive assurances of the Grand Seignor's determination to maintain inviolate his alliance with Great-Britain.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

May 7. In the house of lords, Earl Grey & Lord Grenville declared their intention to support the dignity and privileges of parliament; and Lord Erskine expressed his determination to support the supremacy of the law.

In the commons, a petition was presented from the lord mayor, aldermen and livery of London, praying for the release of Sir Francis Burdett and Mr. Jones. It was moved that it lie on the table. This was opposed, as the petition was disrespectful and insolent; and after a second day's debate, was negatived, 128 to 36.

May 11. The speaker acquainted the house that Earl Moira had been served with a process at the suit of Sir F. Burdett as constable of the tower.

The committee on the privileges of the house reported, that the speaker and sergeant at arms should be suffered to appear in court, and plead to the action brought against them by Sir F. Burdett, for false imprisonment; which was agreed to, and the attorney general was ordered to defend them.

Foreign Office, Downing-street, May 10.

The king has been pleased to appoint John Philip Morier, Esquire, to be his majesty's secretary of legation to the United States of America.

FROM THE BOSTON CENTINEL:

Captain Fairfield, of Salem, furnishes the following distressing particulars.

April 10th.—Sailed from Naples in the ship Margaret, of Salem, with a crew consisting of 15 in number, exclusive of 21 passengers, making 46 men and boys in all. We passed through the gut of Gibraltar on the 22d of April; nothing of moment occurred until Saturday, 20th May, when in latitude 40, N. long. 39, 30, W. having strong breezes of wind at S. E. and E. S. E. and rainy weather, at 10 A. M. took in royals, top-gallant studding-sails, fore and mizen top-gallant-sails, jibs, stay-sails, and mainsail—at meridian, wind and weather continued, as before mentioned—at 1 P. M. on the 21st, the fore-topmast studding sail hauled away, filled with water, and carried away the studding-sail boom—we took in lower studding sail, spanker and mizen top-sail, by which time it became squally, and we immediately clewed down fore and main top-sail, and let fly the sheets—the wind shifted in an instant from E. S. E. to S. W. and although the helm was hard to weather we could not get the ship before the wind, but was instantly hove on her beam ends. Every person on board the ship being at this time on deck, reached either the bottom or side of the ship and fell on. We secured an axe, and immediately cut away the weather lanyards of the throughs, mast and long boat, which being done the ship righted, being full of water, her hatches off, chests, water casks, &c. drifting amongst the wreck; the guns, anchors, camboose, and every article upon deck, we hove overboard to lighten the ship, and endeavored to clear the wreck of spars, rigging, &c. which lay heaving against her to windward; but our efforts were in vain, the starboard lanyards of the shrouds being deep under water, and lay to the ship, and the sea making a continual breach ever here during this time the long boat lay heaving among the wreck of spars, &c. bottom up, the pinnace being wrecked entirely to pieces, except her keel, and about three streaks of the boards of her bottom lay in the same situation as the long boat, and the stern boat laying at a small distance from the ship, full of water, with her gunwales torn off, butts started, and her stern about half stove in, it was with the utmost difficulty that we baled her out, and kept her so far free as to enable us to get a rope fast to the long boat; by which we hauled the long boat along side the ship, turned her over and found her to be badly stove, her gunwales and stem broke entirely off, her wood ends and garberd streak open, and large holes in her bottom, so that we found it impossible to bale her out, and we were under the necessity of upsetting her again in the sea, with a hope of being able to stop a part of the holes in her bottom, which we in part effected, by driving too the butts, and by putting canvas, &c. into the largest holes in her bottom, after which we turned her over again, and by continual bailing with every bucket, &c. which we could procure, we were enabled to keep her from sinking, still keeping under the lee of the ship. By this time it was about 7 P. M. when the boat being hauled near to the ship for the purpose of getting canvas and oakum to stop the leak, as many as could reach the long boat jumped into her, and finding the boat would be again sunk if we remained so near the ship, we were obliged to veer the boat to leeward of the ship at the distance of 15 or 20 fathoms, being 12 in number in the boat; we had not lain in this situation but a short time before one man jumped from the ship into the sea, and made for the boat, we took him into the boat, and finding at the same time all determined to pursue the same plan, we were obliged to veer the boat further from the ship. We stated to them on board our situation, which was also evident to them, as it required all our exertions to keep the boat from sinking. During the night we lay with a rope fast from the ship to the boat and under her lee, when the people on board the ship being exceedingly anxious to get into the boat (which had they effected we should all have been inevitably lost) kept hauling the boat towards them; we then bent another rope and veered out as they hauled; but finding they were determined to sink the boat by getting into her, we were obliged (after stating repeatedly to them our situation) to tell them that provided they persisted in getting into the boat, we should be obliged, though very reluctantly, to cut the rope and leave them, after which they desisted from hauling the boat towards the ship. At this time we were 13 in number in the long boat, besides two men who were in the stern boat lying under the lee of the ship, continually baling to keep her from sinking, which augmented our number to more than could with any degree of safety attempt to leave the ship in the long boat in the shattered condition she was then in.

Monday morning, moderate breezes and sea tolerably smooth; at which time the people on the wreck were about half of the taffel rail, and the remainder on the bowsprit and windlass, every other part of her being under water, continually, and they kept entreating us to take them into the boat; we then told them our determination was to continue by the ship while she kept together, and that the boat was not in a situation to leave them, notwithstanding our wretched situation, having neither compass quadrant or any instrument, whatever, by which we could direct our course, nor a single drop of fresh water in the boat, and two men constantly bailing; all of which circumstances were known to them.

About this time, casks of brandy and several other articles of the cargo were drifting from the wreck, amongst which we picked up the mizen top gallant sail, 2 spars, 5 oars, 1 cask of oil, 1 drowned pig and 1 goat, 1 bag of bread, and they hove us a gallon keg of brandy from the ship; we then fixed a sail for the boat from the mizen top gallant sail. It being now about 1 to'clock A. M. when the people on the wreck were determined to get into the boat, and began by jumping into the sea, at which we veered the boat farther distant from the ship and then again repeated to them our determination to continue by them so long as the ship held together, but if any other person attempted to come into the boat we should leave them notwithstanding our desperate situation; at this time they had secured on the wreck two quadrants, two compasses, 1 bid. of water bread, flour, &c. a plenty of provisions, as they frequently informed us, but they would not come on any of those articles unless we consented to come along side the ship with the boat, which had we done we should have been sunk in an instant, as they were prepared to jump, having oars, chests, &c. ready for the purpose on the taffel rail. Notwithstanding they knew our determination and the impossibility of taking them into the boat, they still persisted in getting into her, and one of them jumped into the sea and made for the small boat which lay veered to the leeward of the ship, which boat he reached, and finding we could not take him into the long boat, by which time, seeing they were all determined to pursue the same plan as this last man, we were under the painful necessity of cutting the rope by which we were fast to the ship, and row and sail from them for the preservation of our lives, being in hopes of falling in with a vessel to relieve us, which was almost the only hope we had left, being about 400 miles distance from the nearest land, and in the desperate situation before stated. At this time it was about meridian, with moderate wind from the southward and westward, we made our course as nearly east as possible, for the island of Corvo or Flores, and the last we saw of the ship she was lying in the same situation as when we parted from her: it was now about 6 P. M. the 22d of May; we continued our course for the eastward, having the winds variable from S. S. E. to N. W. and two men constantly bailing, steering to the night by the stars, when to be seen, and when dark cloudy weather, by the heaving of the sea, and in the day time by judging of the bearing of the sun, when to be seen, and when not, by the best of our judgment. We continued in this situation without seeing any vessel until Saturday, 26th of May, at 1 P. M. when to our great joy we espied a sail which proved to be the brig Poacher, of Boston, captain James Dunn, from Alicante; who took us on board and treated us with every attention and civility while on board his vessel, for which we return him our most grateful acknowledgements, and also to capt. Richard Pedrick, who very generously afterwards took 6 of us on board his vessel, and brought us into Marblehead and treated us with great politeness.

STOCKHOLM, March 30. ROYAL DECREE.

Know all men by these presents, that we, Charles XIII. having in the third article of the treaty of peace concluded with the emperor of Russia, dated the 17th of September last, agreed to adopt such measures as should be regulated by the treaty then about to be entered into between Sweden, France and Denmark, for enforcing the continental system, ordered, in our circular of the 27th of Oct. last, that no British vessels or ships of war should, after the time therein mentioned, be permitted to enter our ports; and further, in the third article of the treaty with the emperor of France, of date the 6th of January last, having fully and in every respect acceded to the continental system bound ourselves to shut our ports against the trade of Great Britain, and not permit the importation of English goods or manufactures, of whatever description, or in whatsoever vessel the same might arrive: And, whereas, having relinquished the permission we reserve to ourselves in the treaty with his majesty the emperor of Russia, of importing colonial produce, we now only retain to ourselves the power to import salt, sufficient for the consumption of our kingdom; farther, to fulfil the treaties with the said powers, we hereby graciously command, that on and after the 24th of April next, no goods shall be imported, neither on paying the duties nor in transitu, which belong to Great Britain and Ireland, the colonies or countries under the influence of the British government, or goods of any description whatsoever, loaded, in vessels from Great Britain or any of her dependencies, be admitted into our ports; and that all vessels, under whatsoever flag, which shall be proved to carry such goods, as are not furnished with certificates and documents to certify the origin and full particulars of their cargoes from the ports of loading, shall upon their arrival in our harbor be ordered off, save and except such vessels as are solely laden with salt, the importation of which, from all foreign countries, we permit in vessels not belonging to his Britannic majesty or his subjects. For the full execution of our decree, we command all officers and persons in our service, to exert their utmost vigilance, in strictly examining the papers, certificates and documents of all vessels that may arrive, agreeably to the gracious separate command we on this subject shall or may issue.

Given at our Court of Stockholm, &c.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27.

The Mary Southwick, arrived at Boston in 43 days from Gottenburg, reports the ships Allegany, capt. Morris and Sophila, captain M'Intire of Georgetown, Columbia, as having been spoken on the coast of Sweden.

The seizure of American property in the ports of Holland, Naples, and Spain is at once a proof positive that Bonaparte is determined there shall no longer be any neutrals upon the continent of Europe—what few governments yet hold a nominal sovereignty, hold it upon the tenure of his will—Sweden, Denmark, and Prussia it is known could not resist him a single day, the independence of the Hanse-Towns is totally destroyed, and neither Austria nor Russia have the will or ability to resist him, and European Turkey is, as to us, a mere nonentity—Spain and Portugal, hitherto called independent, are probably by this time numbered with the subjugated nations of Europe. In this state of things it is an interesting query—where is the enterprising American merchant to seek out an honorable and profitable trade? The answer is, that if we act with justice to ourselves, in resisting the infamous conduct of France, we have Great Britain and her dependencies, Spanish and Portuguese America, and the Island of St. Domingo, a trade scarcely inferior to any which we have ever possessed; but if the same pusillanimous policy is to be adhered to which we have for some time pursued, we may shortly expect to see ourselves in the same situation as unfortunate Holland, a nation left without an existence. French Customs House Officers, backed by French Soldiers, are in that case what we have every reason to expect, and what the experience of other nations before our eyes ought to convince us we shall receive. In this view of the subject, can there be a question as to the mode of conduct which this nation ought to pursue? Let our merchants arm their vessels and render the attack which may be made upon them, while pursuing a fair trade, and there cannot be a doubt but Bonaparte and his ruffians will quit the contest, when they find there is nothing to be gained but dry blows. Bonaparte does not fight without an object. When no plunder can be obtained he will be willing to abstain; at any rate he cannot have it in his power, do what we may, to treat us worse than he has done, and if we are rewarded for our forbearance by robbery, resistance cannot place us in a worse situation, tho' it must be confessed that resistance now, will be a good deal like locking the stable door after the horse is stolen; but another old adage may comfort us—it is never too late to do good.

Caution.

ON the 2d day of November, 1807, I purchased a negro boy of Thomas Wheeler, for 333 dol. 33 cents; and at the same time I paid him 71 dol. 33 cents, as per his receipt in my possession; and passed my note for 261 dol. 93 cents, payable at a distant period. In 1808, I paid him 147 dol. 25 cents, and obtained a credit on the note for it some time last year. I have also assumed to pay for said Wheeler a sum, which together with the amount he owes me on open account, I expect will about settle the balance on the note. Having repeatedly sought a settlement with Wheeler without effect, and it being suggested to me that it is conformable to transfer the same without giving credit for my account, I have thought proper to caution all persons against receiving it, as I am determined not to pay any more than I have assumed to pay until I get a fair settlement, and should there by any thing due it will be paid.

I have been thus particular, as an improper attempt has been made to make false payments.

Whoever secures the said fellow so that I get him again, shall receive the above reward.
